

Hannah Blair

Senior Account Manager

Eagerness and enthusiasm encompass Hannah's approach to all things public relations.

While local business enterprise and community relations are close to her heart, she is a big-picture thinker who can implement small details to execute large-scale endeavors.

Hannah is a communications professional who has cultivated community outreach, 501 (c)(3) fundraising campaigns and events ranging from bike nights to three-day festivals. She has worked in nonprofit, healthcare and higher education sectors for local and national organizations, where she worked extensively with social media, marketing and strategic planning efforts.

As a senior account manager at Krile Communications, Hannah is passionate about identifying each client's authentic story to share with their audience. She enjoys developing branded content, business writing and coordinating collateral pieces to use as tools in her clients' communications initiatives.

A native of Logan, Ohio, Hannah graduated from The Ohio State University's School of Communication and completed her Master of Business Administration from Tiffin University in 2019. She resides in her hometown of Logan, Ohio with her husband, Coy, daughter, Ilah and their two adopted dogs. Outside of work, you can find her cheering on The Ohio State Buckeyes or hiking at Hocking Hills State park.
